

DAVEY'S PLAN FOR RELIEF IN DIFFICULTIES

Stop Gap" Legislation Is Likely in Spite of Governor's Opposition

BATTLE ROYAL IS ON Executive Makes Plea in Special Message

Columbus, O., May 21.—(AP)—The administration's $11,500,000 permanent relief program, which Gov. Martin L. Davey hoped to see legislated, within a few days, encountered difficulties today.

Paul P. Yoder, Democratic floor leader in the senate, asserted the senate would require almost a month to consider the bill. The senate has a bill which would enable hard-pressed counties to borrow from the present $3,000,000 relief rotary fund until July 15.

Speaker J. Freer Bittinger said the administration would insist upon enactment of the measure in substantially its present form as soon as possible. He hoped to see the house pass it this afternoon.

Bittinger said he approved mending the administration bill to include a $3,000,000 rotary fund, but that he opposed passage of any stop-gap legislation.

"If we passed a temporary bill," he said, "when it expired we would be facing the same situation we face now."

At the same time relief officials at Cuyahoga and Lucas counties protested before the House Finance Committee against a provision of the administration bill which would require counties to assume part of the relief burden.

The officials said they could not pay 25 per cent, much less the 50 per cent that would be required after July.

Governor Davey submitted a $11,500,000 program designed to provide for Ohio's needy until Jan. 31 next and told the legislature in a special message that stop-gap legislation would cost from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 more a year than a long-term program.

Under Davey's program, counties would issue notes in anticipation of revenue from the utilities excise tax for the next eight years, making an estimated $2,000,000 available for relief.

All counties would be required to issue their Carey act bonds, making another $1,000,000 available. Reappropriation of the $3,000,000 rotary fund of the present law, from which only $85,000 has been borrowed, reappropriation of $1,000,000 available from present funds for June and July and $1,000,000 "available under the present law and not yet allocated," plus $1,500,000.

Davey said another $2,000,000 would be available from the general fund.

Accusation of Fraud Denied By Townsend

Dr. Francis E. Townsend

Senate Inquiry Marked by Continuance of Fiery Session with Father of Pension Plan Chief Witness

Washington, May 21.—(AP)—An assertion, immediately denied, that the Townsend Old Age Pension organization used the mails to defraud was made today before a House investigating committee.

James R. Sullivan, committee counsel, declared that $11,490 was raised for a "congressional fund" by an appeal to Townsend clubs sent through the mails in the form of "Townsendgrams."

Dr. F. E. Townsend, founder of the movement who was on the stand for the third day, denied knowledge of the appeal "until after it was out." He added he did not believe the mails "were used to defraud."

Sullivan said that prior to the "Townsendgram" appeal, the organization raised $23,490 to defray expenses of seven men brought to Washington in January, 1935, to draft the McGroarty bill, embodying a form of the Townsend plan, and work for its passage.

Dr. Townsend disclaimed knowledge of Sullivan's assertion that only $1,864 of the $23,490 was used before the "Townsendgram" appeal was made for additional funds.

The witness explained he had little to do with the raising of money and his province was the "philosophical and economic" aspect of the movement.

He said Robert E. Clements, former national secretary and co-founder, and others in the business handled the financial end of the program.

The committee turned to this line of inquiry after an angry session yesterday in which Townsend cried that many of the questions directed at him were "nonsense."

Other features of yesterday's hearing included testimony by Townsend that rich and poor—the Morgans, Rockefellers, Du Ponts and William Randolph Hearst as well as penniless citizenry—would be eligible for the Old Age pensions if they would agree to spend them immediately.

Questioned by committee members, the doctor agreed that the transactions tax suggested to finance the pensions would fall on the poor, but he added:

"Taxes always fall on the poor because there are so many of them but remember, everybody will pay the tax on all transactions."

He also disclosed, in response to questions, that he had had conferences with Father Charles E. Coughlin, leader of The National Union for Social Justice, and with Gerald K. Smith, an organizer for the Long "Share-the-Wealth" program, but said an alliance to form a third party was not projected now.

MINE LEADER TO BACK NEW GUFFEY BILL

White House Conference Among Progressives Causes Speculation

TAX PROBLEM 'TOUGH' Adjournment of Congress Appears Remote Now

Washington, May 21.—(AP)—Nightmarish visions of laboring over legislation in July's heat began to float before congressmen today as major legislation remained stuck in committees.

Whipping all but one member into line, the Senate Finance Committee today reached agreement on a compromise plan for increasing corporation taxes but settled a proposal, at the loss of considerable revenue, for boosting the normal income tax rate.

Moving along swiftly after days of delay, the committee thus reached accord on the vital part of the revenue bill.

The compromise would call for a flat 18 per cent tax on corporation income, a flat 7 per cent on income withheld from distribution, exemption of $1,000 from taxation for corporations making no more than $20,000 a year, and retention of the present capital stock and excess profits taxes.

Harrison said the compromise corporation tax plan would raise "somewhere over $500,000,000" and said the treasury had been asked to submit exact estimates as to the yield.

The indication was it would fall considerably short of the $623,000,000 of permanent revenue sought by President Roosevelt to meet the cost of the new farm program and prepayment of the bonus. Harrison had no definite reply when he was asked where the committee would get the remainder of the money.

SENSATIONAL ACCUSATIONS FLY BACK AND FORTH DURING DILL SUIT FOR ALIENATION

Mother of Young "Alienated" Husband Accused of "Killing" Grandchild—Attorney For Ex-Senator Does Not Deny Illegal Operation Charge.

Mt. Vernon, O., May 21.—(AP)—Charges by defense counsel of "extortion" countered today sensational accusations by plaintiff's attorneys in a $25,000 alienation of affection suit against former U. S. Senator Clarence C. Dill and his sister-in-law.

Final summations by both sides were to be completed this afternoon and the four-day-old case given to a jury of eight women and four men.

Twenty-year-old Margie Heaton Dill alleged in her suit that former Senator Dill and Mrs. Grace Dill arranged an illegal operation for her husband, Wendell C. Dill, son of Mrs. Grace Dill and nephew of the former senator.

Attorney Barton W. Blair, who employs Margie Dill as a stenographer, concluded his summation by pointing a finger at Mrs. Grace Dill and asserting:

"People only live through their children and their grandchildren. You killed yours!"

L. C. Stillwell, counsel for the Dills, replied in his final argument that "this is not an action to protect Margie, it is an action to extort money from Mrs. Grace Dill and Senator Dill."

Denying that Wendell's affections had been alienated, Stillwell said Margie Dill "drove Wendell away from her" because she refused to explain rumors of "certain affairs" with other boys.

Stillwell refused to concede that Mrs. Grace Dill arranged an illegal operation in Washington, D. C., two years ago, but said:

"If she had done this to save this little lady's name—not only the Dill name—with good motive, then she cannot be held for alienating Wendell's affections."

"Of course they were kind to this little girl," Blair said. "They were kind to her so long as they could use this innocent little country girl and commit this crime to clear the Dill name."

Referring to annulment proceedings brought by Wendell Dill in Washington, Blair continued:

"The senator said he advised against the annulment. He testified he didn't want the annulment proceedings filed in Washington. Why? Because he didn't want it even suspected that he had anything to do with getting rid of this little girl, yet a lawyer who works for the senator filed the annulment proceedings."

Blair criticised Clarence C. Dill for not assisting the young couple financially.

"There is only one boy in the Dill family," Blair said. "Dill posterity depends on him."

"This boy was married. What did (Continued on Page Six.)

HUNDREDS DIE IN CHINA BY QUAKE

Terror-Stricken Natives of Interior Describe Scenes of Horror

Shanghai, China, May 21.—(AP)—Earthquakes killed hundreds in Central China, caused extensive damage and terrorized the superstitious natives, reports reaching Shanghai today said.

Several hundred were killed and injured Saturday at Pingshin, Szechuan province, by a severe shock, the reports said. Sixty per cent of the buildings in Pingshin were leveled.

Similar quakes occurred yesterday in Chungking, Szechuan province, and at Lanchow in neighboring Kansu province. Death and damage from the later shocks was not reported in meager and belated accounts reaching here.

Drums were beaten today, sacrifices offered and other magical devices resorted to by the terrified Chinese in their eagerness to appease the monsters they believe cause the shocks.

The Chinese believe these earthquakes are caused by huge whales in the interior of the earth arching their backs against the upper firmament or by angry dragons wagging their tails.

Request for Withdrawal of Foreign Legation Guards Refused

FRANCE BELLIGERENT

Italy's New Empire Not Yet Given Recognition

(By The Associated Press.)

The new empire that Fascism built with bullets turned its hand today to two ticklish problems—the African color line and the foreign troops who still stand guard in Ethiopia.

Il Messaggero, influential Roman newspaper, served notice there would be no "empire of mulattoes." It deplored gay songs of war which thrilled of strong Italian soldier heroes, rushing to liberate charming Ethiopian lasses.

While official France flatly refused an Italian request that 150 French colonial troops withdraw from guarding railway shops at Dire Dawa, British and French statesmen were reported conferring over Fascist "hints" about legation guards in Addis Ababa.

The Italians believe these guards, who valorously protected foreign lives during the rioting which preceded the Italian occupation of Haile Selassie's one-time capital, now are unnecessary.

However, the question of whether such a withdrawal would amount to tacit recognition of the new Roman empire entered into the case.

In Paris, Leon Blum, who will be France's new Premier next month unless the unexpected happens, made it plain his Leftist government will press for settlement of the crisis caused by the Ethiopian war and the sanctions taken against the "aggressor."

In Africa, Viceroy Pietro Badoglio, military hero of the conquest, started home for what was described as a brief holiday. He departed while British authorities investigated the mysterious disappearance of a British ambulance orderly in Ethiopia, a man who was undergoing treatment against rabies.

Geneva heard from Harold B. Butler, speaking before the International Labor Conference, a new warning against European or Asiatic war.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, acting foreign minister, declared in Paris, Italy's expulsion of a French priest from Ethiopia was "inacceptable" and an authoritative source said France would protest vigorously.

The case of Monsignor Andre Jarousseau, 78-year-old leader of Roman Catholic missions in Ethiopia, aroused intense official interest.

ZEPPELIN HOMEWARD BOUND ON SECOND TRANS-OCEAN TRIP

Lakehurst, N. J., May 21.—(AP)—The dirigible Hindenburg headed back across the Atlantic today, its skipper hopeful that the winds which retarded its westward flight would speed it toward Germany.

The trip will complete the second of ten round trips contemplated for the Zeppelin between Germany and the United States this summer.

Before its scheduled return here June 22, however, the airship will make its second South Atlantic crossing to Rio De Janeiro.

Aboard were 15 passengers, one more than the giant dirigible's normal capacity, and a two-and-one-quarter ton racing plane belonging to James H. (Jimmie) Halzip, St. Louis speed pilot.

Twenty minutes after the last bus load of passengers went aboard, the Zeppelin's commander, Captain Ernst Lehmann, gave orders to "Up ship." Taking off at 10:05 p. m. (E. S. T.) the Hindenburg cruised leisurely over New York, then turned eastward to the sea.

FAMOUS EXPLORER CALLED BY DEATH

HARRY WHITNEY, WHO HELD SECRET IN COOK-PEARY DISPUTE, IS DEAD

Montreal, May 21.—(AP)—The dispute over Dr. Frederick A. Cook's claims to discovery of the North Pole was deprived of one of its most important witnesses today in the death of Harry Whitney, of New York, noted explorer and big game hunter.

Whitney, who was 62, died yesterday after coming to Montreal a week ago to undergo an operation.

While Whitney was at a camp at Etah, Greenland, during Admiral Peary's Arctic expedition in 1909, he met Dr. Cook who had a nearby camp.

Dr. Cook spent two days with Whitney and left some articles in his possession, which Peary later refused to take on board.

When Dr. Cook and Admiral Peary subsequently disputed each other's claims to discovery of the pole, Whitney said Cook had told him in confidence that he had reached the pole and had insisted on secrecy.

The act is designed to extend power lines into rural areas with long term loans to farm groups, municipalities, and private companies.

While private concerns can borrow, a provision of the new law says that farm associations, co-operatives, and other non-profit farm units should be given preference.

Rep. Zioncheck's Landlady Horrified As She Makes Visit to Apartment

Rooms Topsy-Turvy With Furniture Missing and Dishes Broken—Belongings Packed Up and Sent to Office While He Is Still on Honeymoon.

Washington, May 21.—(AP)—Representative Zioncheck and his bride must go apartment hunting when they return from their Virgin Islands honeymoon trip.

Developments today indicated the young automobilist from Washington State will get no references from Mrs. Benjamin J. Young, his former landlady, when he begins to answer classified ads.

For yesterday Mrs. Young wept as she looked over the apartment she leased to Zioncheck last Christmas eve. (That was just a week before he took over an apartment house switchboard, rang all the bells, and was arrested.)

Mrs. Young, a magazine writer who has just returned from a trip to South America, said she had read something about Zioncheck's "recent career" but said as she surveyed the desolation of her apartment, that she never thought "anything like this had happened."

As she took an inventory of the kitchen, Mrs. Young sobbed. "My dishes have been thrown out of the window."

The bedroom was next. There had been a bedstead there at one time, said Mrs. Young, "but it seems to be gone."

A mattress rested on box springs. The bed spread, she said, "is in the dining room, under the table—it's being used as a rug."

After the tour of the apartment had been completed, Mrs. Young packed up the Zioncheck wardrobe and sent it to his office.

Before leaving the Virgin Islands for the capital last night, Zioncheck announced he would run for reelection. Although despatches indicate that he has five possible opponents, he said he would win because he is the best man.

CIVIL SERVICE ENTRY IN CASE OF FIRE CHIEF

Complaint Dismissed and Leach Restored to Post

At four o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Henry Sparks, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, made public the commission's finding in the matter of the order of removal of Earl Leach as chief of the fire department, in which the commission found that "said order of removal and the complaint filed in support thereof is not sustained by the evidence and said order of removal and complaint is hereby dismissed," said Leach reinstated to his former position as chief of the fire department.

No comment was given regarding arrangements made for retirement of Chief Leach on June first and return to the ranks as fireman, which was a part of the agreement not appearing on the records.

The entry made public by the Civil Service Commission reads:

"This day this cause came on for hearing upon the motion of Earl Leach to strike from the files in this case the pleading designated complaint, was argued by counsel and submitted to the Commission, on consideration whereof the Commission find said motion not well taken and does overrule the same. "And, thereupon this cause came on for further hearing on the appeal of Earl Leach to the Order of Removal issued by the City Manager, the answer and explanation of Earl Leach thereto, the evidence, and was argued by counsel. support thereof is not sustained by the evidence and said Order of Removal and complaint is hereby dismissed. "It is therefore ordered and adjudged by the Civil Service Commission that the said Earl Leach be, and he is hereby reinstated and restored to his position as Chief of the Fire Department of the City of Washington to be effective as of this date, and the said Earl Leach as Chief of said Fire Department is hereby restored to all things lost by virtue of this proceedings and entitled to all the benefits of his said position.

Your Chances To Obtain Tickets For G. O. P. Convention Are Slim

Ralph Williams, in Charge of "Big Show," Is Swamped

Details of Arranging Huge Gathering Are Amazing

By MAURICE MERRYFIELD

Cleveland.—What chance is there of obtaining a ticket for the Republican national convention in June? That question is being asked by thousands as the convention draws near, yet only a fraction of those thousands will be able to attend the convention because of the limited seating capacity.

And the difficult task of turning down the legion of ticket requests which have flooded Republican convention headquarters in Cleveland falls to the lot of suave Ralph E. Williams, vice chairman of the national G. O. P. committee and the man in charge of convention arrangements.

Ralph Williams, vice chairman of the national Republican committee ional G. O. P. committee and the man in charge of convention arrangements.

One of the reasons why Williams is so well qualified for his position is because he can say "no" in so many different ways and yet not antagonize people.

Endless Detail

Few realize the elaborate and complicated machine which functions for months before the stage is set for a national convention. Thousands of details must be arranged and hundreds of persons enlisted in a smoothly working organization before the curtain goes up on the "big show."

It is Ralph E. Williams, Oregon banker and veteran national committeeman of 28 years' experience, who is the "man behind the scenes" at the Republican national convention. He first occupied this difficult post at the G. O. P. convention at Kansas City in 1928 and then again at Chicago in 1932, doing such a capable job in both instances that he was enlisted again to set the stage for the Cleveland convention this June.

His greatest problem is to cope with the enormous demand for tickets. The Cleveland convention has brought forth the greatest demand for seats in the history of the Republican party both because of its importance as the possible turning point in G. O. P. history and because it overshadows in interest the 1936 Democratic convention.

Tact Needed

Williams estimates that he could easily have disposed of 100,000 tickets, excluding requests from those who are merely interested spectators, yet the Cleveland public auditorium can accommodate only 14,000. And the problem of portioning out these coveted tickets where they will do the most good is no easy one, since it is necessary to avoid alienating a loyal party worker, antagonizing a newspaper editor, or incurring the ill will of someone else.

Accommodations must be reserved for approximately 1,000 delegates, another 1,000 alternates, nearly 1,000 newspaper writers and photographers and hundreds of Republican office holders and politicians and their friends. In addition to this, each delegate is allowed an average of five tickets for friends and fellow workers, although delegates near the convention city are allowed a few more and those farthest away are cut down on their quota.

This method of distributing tickets for a district through its convention delegate shifts the responsibility to the delegates and clears the national organization of considerable work, since most of the requests for tickets are merely referred back to the delegates.

Rooms Go Fast

Housing of the "convention legion" presents another gigantic task for Williams and his staff. Weeks before the convention every available room in every first, second and even third-class hotel in Cleveland had been reserved to accommodate the thousands writing in for reservations.

The careful survey taken to determine what height the speakers' platform should be so as to afford the best view from both the public auditorium and small auditorium which will be thrown open "behind" the convention hall gives one an idea of the infinite care taken in these pre-convention arrangements. Exact measurements were obtained and the layout so planned that the stage will be built to specifications carried out to a fraction of an inch so that Mrs. Brown of Smithville can see as much from Seat 2110 as those in the huge press section or in the broadcasting booths adjacent to the platform.

Add to all this the responsibility of ordering buttons for delegates, badges for officials, banners for the state delegations, assigning working quarters for photographers and radio men, supervising the food and drink concessions, answering pre-convention correspondence which amounts to thousands of letters and one has a faint idea of the gargantuan task of setting the stage for a national political convention.

Enjoys the Show

"I get a great kick out of it, though," Williams chuckles. "I've never held a political office and never run for one, but I enjoy the whole show. Of course my wife isn't as enthusiastic about politics as I am, because it takes me away from home so much."

When asked his opinion as to whether it would be a lively convention, Williams nodded in the affirmative and added:

"But a good fight is a wholesome sign. It shows the party has vitality and stirs up the interest of voters."

Williams is extremely optimistic about chances of electing a Republican president and points to the number of candidates seeking the G. O. P. nomination in support of his contention that Republicans generally are confident of victory next fall.

Peaceful Home Politics Is Another Hope, He Says in Congress Message

Havana, May 21.—(AP)—Cuba's new constitutional president, Miguel Mariano Gomez, directed the island republic today on a course of major governmental reforms, preferential trade relations with the United States and peaceful politics at home.

After his inauguration to end the 2½ years of provisional government that followed the overthrow of Gerardo Machado, Dr. Gomez outlined his policies last night in his first message to a special session of the congress.

In the republic's efforts to broaden its markets on a reciprocal basis, the 47-year-old president said:

"We must give preference to relations based on the interchange of products among friendly countries in this hemisphere and especially to our great consumer, the North American Union, which merits our gratitude in so many ways for its reiterated, historic acts of benefit and help throughout our existence as a rebellious colony and as a Republic full of worries and troubles."

Dr. Gomez asked the congress aid in measures to effect equitable distribution of public wealth, restoration of Republic's credit, improvement of public health facilities, closer relations between capital and labor, modernization of codes and laws and reopening of Havana University.

Chinese Postmen Trudge Afoot

Modern transport has increased but the combined mileage of railway, automobile, steamship and sail boat postal routes still is only a fourth that of the routes over which the only possible movement is by foot.

GANGSTER'S DREAMS LUXURY NOW FADING

BANDITS WHO LOOTED OHIO JEWELRY STORES FACE DREARY PROSPECTS

Chicago.—(AP)—What an assistant state's attorney said was a gunman's dream of becoming a "new John Dillinger" and retiring from crime with a million dollars worth of loot was disturbed by the prospect of trial on larceny and slaying charges.

The Cook county grand jury was reported yesterday to have voted a larceny indictment against John Barton, alias Al Brady, named by Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford as the dreamer. Crawford said Barton, held in Indianapolis on a charge of killing a policeman, hoped to settle down with an income of $1,000 a month.

Also reported indicted were James Dahlover, described by police as Barton's lieutenant, Jack Becker and his brother Robert, accused of buying $50,000 worth of stolen jewelry from the gang. William Masonick and George Klotter, alleged by the state to have conducted negotiations between the gang and the Beckers.

The state fixed the gang's total "take" in a series of Ohio jewelry store robberies at $101,000, but asserted the Beckers paid only $1,400 for the lot they were accused of buying and quoted Dahlover as complaining that another gang robbed them of the remainder in Chicago.

All of the men reported indicted except Robert Becker, a fugitive were arrested.

F. L. Brothers Implicates Wm. H. Reinhart as He Admits He Followed "Irregular" Course

Columbus, O., May 21.—(AP)—Frank L. Brothers admitted from the witness stand in his trial for embezzlement today that he followed irregular procedure in paying bills owed by the State Conservation division while he was its chief accountant but declared he acted on orders from William H. Reinhart, former Conservation Commissioner.

Brothers, accused of embezzling $13,000 from the division, said Reinhart directed him to use his personal account to pay bills and emphasized the order with profanity. The prosecution charges Brothers deposited division funds in a personal account at a Columbus bank instead of placing the money with the state treasurer as required by law.

"Shortly after he (Reinhart) got there (meaning his appointment as conservation commissioner)," Brothers testified, "bills were coming in every day. Some hard letters were coming in, too. As a result he very flatly jumped over me for not paying them. I explained it would take a month or so to pay them through the regular channels."

"He very emphatically told me to pay them. His secretary was there and told me I had an account. I said it was a personal account. He (Reinhart) then said, 'use it! Pay them...bills!'"

Brothers said that he had been a state employee since 1925.

While on a month's leave of absence in March 1935, Brothers said Reinhart informed him that something was wrong with the accounts. "If there is any discrepancy, you know about it," Brothers said he told Reinhart.

"He got hostile and irritable. He said to get some money and fix it up. I said there was no shortage of money but if there was a discrepancy you know about it," Brothers testified.

Brothers testified that after this alleged shortage was discovered, he visited Reinhart and quoted the former commissioner as saying: "if you can get $1,200 I can settle this thing up. I'll take care of this matter."

Pana, Ill. (AP)—Floral decorations are a "desecration of the dead," the Rev. L. J. Mattingly, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church, says in announcing that henceforth no flowers will be laid on graves in Calvary cemetery and that shrubs and other plants there will be removed.

HOFFMAN, WIFE SEW UP VICTORY

Governor and Mrs. Harold G. Hoffman

Claiming vindication of his brand of "Jersey justice" anent his connections with the Hauptmann case, Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey scored a one-sided victory over former Congressman Franklin D. Fort in their contest for election as Republican delegate-at-large to the G. O. P. national convention. Fort has opposed the governor on the grounds that Hoffman's Hauptmann case activity "disqualified" him from representing the party at the convention. Governor Hoffman and his wife are pictured above casting their ballot at South Amboy, two votes he evidently didn't need.

POLITICS at Random

Newark, N. J., May 21.—(AP)—Franklin W. Fort, beaten by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman for fourth and last place as delegate-at-large to the Republican National convention, conferred with political allies today on a possible challenge of Hoffman's heavy poll in Hudson county, Democratic stronghold.

O. D. Keep of South Orange, his campaign manager, disclosed that they were having "experts" analyze yesterday's vote and would decide today what action to take. Hoffman got 24,919 votes in Hudson, 6,800 more than any of the candidates running with him, while Fort received 7,963.

All ballot boxes in the county are sealed and under guard.

Albany, N. Y., May 21.—(AP)—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's unexpected decision to decline nomination for a third term stirred New York's political pot to a boiling point today, reviving Democratic talk of a "draft movement" and bringing Republican predictions of a sweeping victory in President Roosevelt's home state this fall.

Rapid-fire developments in the wake of the Governor's dramatic announcement brought:

(1) Expressions of hope by President Roosevelt and Lieut. Gov. M. William Bray that Lehman will see his way clear to reconsider his announcement and run for re-election.

(2) Senator Wagner's (D., N. Y.) assertion that "we've just got to draft him (Governor Lehman)."

(3) Republican State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton's prediction that "the Republicans not only will elect the governor, the senate and the assembly, but will carry the state for the Republican candidate for president this fall."

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 21.—(AP)—United States Senator James Couzens, a Republican who faces vigorous opposition for renomination within his own party, had an invitation today to enter the Democratic primary next September.

In Washington, Senator Couzens received without comment the news that the State Democratic pre-Primary convention had endorsed him, along with five Democrats, for the senatorial nomination. He has made no announcement of his plans.

The implied invitation to the Republican senator was contained in a blanket endorsement of all who have been mentioned as possible candidates. The Democrats named are Rep. Prentiss M. Brown (D., Mich.), former Governor William A. Comstock, Frank A. Picard, who was defeated by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R.) in 1934; Ray D. Schneider, Wayne county auditor, and John H. Muyskens, a University of Michigan instructor.

The Democrats, who will hold their formal state convention today to elect eight delegates at large, each with half a vote, to the National convention, heard Postmaster General James A. Farley predict in an address last night that "the governor of a typical Prairie state" would be the Republican presidential nominee.

Farley said the candidate to whom he referred was "destitute of experience and devoid of practice in national, still less in international matters," and that his election would be a "reckless experiment in government."

Slain by Classmate

Robert Paul Henneberry, 18-year-old student at Williams college, Williamstown, Mass., and son of a Chicago manufacturer, was shot and killed by a class-mate as he entered the latter's dormitory room. The classmate, Lewis Jack Somers, 19-year-old freshman and wrestler on the school's team, wounded another student and then committed suicide. A fit of temporary insanity brought on by overstudy was given as the reason for the shootings.

Just suppose you wanted to find the word ZYZZLE in the dictionary. Would you start at the first page, leaf through the entire book and come finally to the last word, on the last page? That, you say, would be an insane waste of time.

Now, suppose you need accessories for house-cleaning. Suppose you need soap, or floor-wax, or a pail and mop. Many stores are featuring real bargains in household needs for spring. Yet you waste time and effort, if you walk from store to store . . . wander from counter to counter looking for what you want at the price you want to pay.

Instead, you may sit comfortably at home and learn where and when to make the best buys. That's all printed for you in the advertisements of this paper. You have only to read them and heed them to save time, save tiresome shopping and save money.

HEBER W. ROE
JEWELER

SUMMER SHOES show an infinite variety in fabric, last and heel. Baby calf, patent leather and gabardine, are among the most favored fabrics.

The last has crept up high on the instep, often giving a medieval line. Heels are low or medium, and the high heel is still with us as of yore.

Illustrated are the bucko-trimmed calf golf shoe; the calf monk shoe with square heel and toe; the brasseylet British tan calf oxford with square toe and the Tyrolean flat-heeled navy bucko-T-strap sandal.

Shown also is the brown bucko sandal with square toe and heel, a favorite, a hand-woven raffia sandal with linen and patent leather quarter-smart and cool. Then there is the London tan calf moccasin in shoe effect with a low heel and a built-up tongue shoe showing platoo last, square toe.

Navy gabardine and tan calf are combined in one model, also having square toes, and a one-eyelet tie of terracotta baby calf and gray gabardine high-lasted shoe with cut-outs in front.

Others are of Chinese inspiration in baby calf, gabardine and patent leather combinations.

FLOODS AND DUST ARE PRODUCTS OF EROSION OF LAND

Soil Chief Warns Loss to Continue Unless Preventatives Taken

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington (AP)—This spring's floods and last summer's dust storms are phases of the same accelerating national catastrophe—destined to increase in destructiveness, believes H. H. Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service, unless a national conservation program is carried out.

"These pitiless floods," he says, "are carrying millions of tons of rich soil to eternal waste, just as the dust storm did, ravaging field and city, and snatching lives along the way. Both are sign-posts of America's misuse of the land."

In capsule form, he describes the events which led to the present floods.

Fields were plowed for crops, leaving the soil unprotected from rains. Forests were cut down. Annual freshets washed away the top soils. Nothing but hard clays were left.

Rains fell. Instead of seeping slowly through top loam most of the water slid off the clay. The runoff formed rivulets and streams cut gullies and poured at an accelerated rate and in increased volume, into the rivers.

FLOOD RECORD FALL

To illustrate the increase of flood waters in recent years, Bennett quotes readings from the gauge on the Mississippi at Memphis:

"In 1927, when the greatest and most disastrous flood in the history of the river occurred, the gauge reached a height of 45.8 feet. Scanning the records, we find the next highest flood was that of 1916, when the gauge measure was 43.4 feet. The greatest previous flood was that of 1890, when the river reached 35.6 feet."

The damage of rushing flood waters is usually calculated at the moment by estimating the destruction to homes, bridges and roads and the loss of life. But Bennett points out the corollary loss of soils, which is costing American farmers $400,000,000 a year. Further millions are spent in the dredging necessary in reservoirs, streams and harbors which are filled with silt.

There can be no permanent flood control, says Bennett, until soil conservation is practiced over entire watersheds. That means the knowledge we have of crops and their relation to erosion must be put to use.

GRASS HALTS EROSION

It has been found in southeastern Ohio, for example, that the soil has been 36 tons an acre every year. When the same land is covered with such a protective growth as timothy grass, the loss drops to .07 tons an acre.

At the same time, 34 per cent of the water which falls on the misused acres is turned off and adds to the tons of water which form Ohio river floods. On the acres protected by timothy only three per cent of the rain waters are turned off. The rest is absorbed.

In critical areas, Bennett advises, the more erodible slopes should be taken out of cultivation and planted on some rotation schedule of protective crops. Floods, he says, can be reduced 20 to 25 percent by such measures.

National Guard Flier Killed In Texas Crash

Itasca, Tex., (AP)—Capt. W. K. Ennis, Texas National Guard officer, was killed near here Wednesday night when his plane crashed in an open field. He was alone in the open cockpit plane.

His parachute was partly open, indicating he had attempted to leap from the ship.

TRAVELERS WARNED

St. Louis, Mo. (AP)—From Missouri, state of prolific fruit orchards wrote Mrs. Frances D. Fecker of Union to her sister in Virginia: "Fruit is very scarce. Sister, if you come to this country, bring some dried peaches." But the letter was written in 1834, and now is a state historical exhibit.

COAL PRODUCTION UP

New York, (AP)—National Coal Association estimated Thursday bituminous coal production for the week ended May 16 at 6,720,000 tons against 5,848,000 tons a year ago.

One thing they avoid under the German election system as improved by Herr Hitler is the recount.

ONLY MAN TO GO OVER FALLS IN RUBBER BALL MAKES READY TO BOUNCE OVER BRINK AGAIN

Jean Lussier Selects American Cataract for Perilous Trip This Summer Unmindful of New Rock Pile at Foot of Falls

Lussier in his rubber ball going over the Horseshoe falls July 4, 1928.

the rubber ball made the first trip:

"It was bumped about quite a bit as it was carried along, but there was no severe jolt until just before I went over the falls. It gave me a nasty bruise on my shoulder blade. When I realized it was starting to fall, I began to pray but in a second, it seemed I was at the bottom and the ball was bouncing up and down four or five times."

Slight Bruises

When, a half hour after the drop, the ball was pulled from the river, Lussier was in a daze. He had suffered slight bruises, but that was all.

Inspiration for that adventure had come to him while working in a machine shop in St. Catharines, Ont., at the time the late Bobby Leach went over the falls in a barrel. Lussier's idea was that the trip could be navigated with greater safety by using a ball.

Finances were managed poorly in 1928, but this time Lussier hopes to make himself enough to make life a great deal more comfortable. He says he already has contracts with tooth paste, cigaret, flashlight and bathing suit companies as well as a news reel concern.

effort to have congress pass it immediately instead of waiting until next session.

The act concentrates on price-fixing and omits the labor provisions which were outlawed by the Supreme Court. Despite the absence of labor clauses, however, Lewis declared that his United Mine Workers would "join in requesting congress to enact the bill at once" as the best step to take in the circumstances.

He said it would "operate to maintain the equilibrium of the coal industry pending further study of stabilization of the industry."

WHITE HOUSE CONFAB CAUSES SPECULATION

A three-hour White House conference between President Roosevelt and a group of senators generally designated as Liberals broke up early today with participants insisting politics was not mentioned.

"A general chat," was the description given to the long session by the senators.

They declared that among the subjects under discussion were economics, government, rural electrification, the supreme court, and the Guffey decision. The effect of sun spots on the weather also was mentioned, said Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis.).

Former Senator Dill, Washington, D. C., and Spokane, Wash., attorney, smiled faintly during portions of Blair's summation. Attractive Mrs. Grace Dill of Fredericktown and bespectacled Wendell Dill, 20-year-old government employee, remained unemotional.

Mrs. Margie Dill, smartly dressed, conferred frequently with her other attorney, Robert L. Carr, but kept her eyes turned from the two defendants and her husband.

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By VICTOR EUBANK

New York, May 21.—(AP)—Except for a few utilities and industrial specialties, the stock market today retraced an early advance of fractions to a point or more and closed with an irregular tone.

The session was one of the slowest in more than a year, transfers approximating 500,000 shares.

Favorable business news stirred up a little demand for stocks in the morning, but buying failed to expand the volume.

Among the best performing shares were those of Johns Manville, Allied Stores, Sears Roebuck, and Electric Power and Light.

International Harvester slipped when the company's directors voted the regular dividend, thus disappointing some who had expected an increase. Others that gave ground included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Du Pont, Goodyear, N. Y. Central and Standard Oil of New Jersey. U. S. Industrial Alcohol dropped about 2.

Wheat finished  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  cent a bushel lower and corn was down  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  cts. Bonds were rather steady and foreign currencies narrow.

CONFESSION OF BATHTUB MURDER AND REACTIONS OF YOUTH DESCRIBED AT TRIAL

Is Told Fiorenza Stood Over Victim's Body in Bathroom Drinking Water

New York, May 21.—(AP)—George Swander, a homicide squad detective, told a jury in general sessions court today of the oral confession he said John Fiorenza made the slaying of Mrs. Nancy Evans Horton.

Mrs. Titterton was strangled, attacked and thrown into the bathroom in her Beckman Place apartment on Good Friday, April 19. Fiorenza is alleged to have confessed April 21.

"We asked him 'Johnny, why not tell us the truth,'" Swander, called first by the state at Fiorenza's trial on a first degree murder charge, testified, "He said, 'If I did that I'd put myself in the hot seat. I have to think of my mother and my girl.'"

Finally, Swander said, the 24-year-old upholsterer's helper told the detectives he was ready to admit everything, and in a few words described his visit to the apartment, the attack, Mrs. Titterton's pleading for mercy, and her death.

"When on my way back to Times Square I called my boss and my girl," Swander quoted Fiorenza as saying.

The confession was made, Swander said, after Fiorenza was told he was lying when he said he had been in general sessions court the morning of the crime.

Fiorenza's former employer, Theodore Kruger, testified that shortly after he and Fiorenza took a love seat to the Titterton apartment the day of the slaying, "Fiorenza drank water in the bathroom where the body was lying."

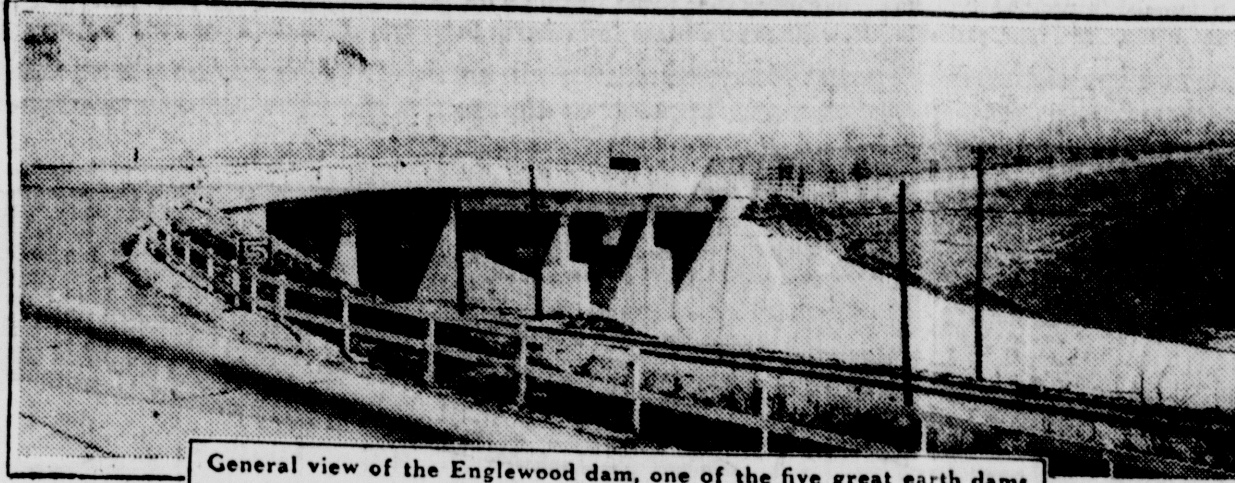

"I said to him, 'Johnny, how can you do that?'" the upholsterer testified. His question went unanswered, he said.

2 STATES' OFFICIALS CONFER ON BRIDGES

Columbus, Ohio, (AP)—Ohio and West Virginia officials prepared Thursday to seek approval from governors of the two states on a proposal to make 13 toll bridges linking them across the Ohio river free to traffic. At a meeting Wednesday State Highway Director John J. Jaster, Jr., said officials approved a plan to acquire the spans and eliminate toll charges after bonds to be issued for their purchase were retired.

OHIO CITY POINTS WAY TO FLOOD CONTROL AFTER DEVASTATING EXPERIENCE 23 YEARS AGO

General view of the Englewood dam, one of the five great earth dams in the Miami conservancy district.

Flood waters pouring through conduits of the Taylorsville dam, showing how rushing waters are controlled.

Downtown Dayton at the height of the 1913 flood that caused the loss of 340 lives and property damage of $100,000,000.

By ALVIN ROSENWEE

Dayton, O.—This Ohio city of 200,000, scene in 1913 of one of the country's worst floods, had no fear of repetition of such a disaster during the recent debacle that spread destruction in eastern states and Ohio valley areas.

A tribute to man's ingenuity, the Miami conservancy district, built at a cost of $29,712,000, has eliminated possibility of a flood here as far as it is humanly possible to do so.

The recent floods recalled vividly to Dayton residents the flood that swept the Miami valley for five days in March, 1913, causing the loss of 340 lives and property damage of $100,000,000.

FIVE DAMS

Today, this area is protected by the Miami conservancy district, a flood prevention system consisting of five dams, levees and channel improvements to control the flow of the Miami river and tributary streams—an object lesson that may be utilized by states stricken this spring.

More than 4,000 square miles, comprising parts of nine southwestern Ohio counties, are protected by this tremendous project.

Just as residents of districts hit recently by floods are considering ways and means of rehabilitation, so did Dayton arise to the occasion after the 1913 flood. Within 60 days after that disaster, a citizens' relief committee had raised $2,000,000 to formulate a plan to prevent another flood.

There then ensued a series of surveys directed by Dr. Arthur Morgan, now chairman of the TVA. In 1914, a "Conservancy act" was passed by the Ohio state legislature.

DR. MORGAN IN CHARGE

An engineering company headed by Dr. Morgan submitted a plan of flood prevention, calling for the relocation of 40 miles of steam railroads and 10 miles of electric railroads, and the elimination of an entire village. An appraisal board spent one and one-half years in specifying 77,000 pieces of property and made known its findings that $78,000,000 worth of property would be benefited by a conservancy district.

Work was begun in January, 1918, and was completed in December, 1922. At one time, more than 2,000 persons were employed on the project.

Most important of the entire system are five dams—Lockington Taylorsville, Huffman, Englewood and Germantown, in the Miami valley. They are designed to take care of a "40 per cent greater flood than in 1913", when the average rainfall at the time of the flood was 10½ inches, and water 12 feet deep raced through Dayton's Main street.

The conservancy district has received only one real test since its construction. In 1933, water reached a 57-foot level at Englewood, but the dam is 115 feet deep from the low water mark to the spillway. The dams are so constructed that excess water is held back, and accumulates temporarily in the valley lands situated above them, to flow off later through the outlets as the floods subside.

ANNUAL COST

Cost of maintaining the conservancy district is $150,000 yearly, but it will all be paid for by the property benefited, and the fact that local industries that might have moved to other locations because of flood danger were not forced to do so.

The principle of flood control by dams, utilized in the Miami conservancy district, cannot be used on navigable portions of the Monongahela, Ohio and other rivers, but it is believed that tributaries of these waterways may be similarly controlled. Thus it is likely Dayton's solution to the flood problem may point the way to a plan that will be used by flood areas generally.

HANDBILL NUISANCE PLAGUES COLUMBUS

Columbus residents are getting weary of the annoyance and expense caused by the passing of handbills and are urging their councilmen to put a stop to it.

Washington's lawmakers have stopped it here for which all citizens who have pride in their city are thankful.

Here's what a Columbus resident says in the Dispatch:

Sir: How much longer do the residents of Columbus have to be imposed upon by merchants, grocers, etc., dumping all manner of cheap advertising on front porches and lawns?

Bill passers run over lawns, through hedges, jump over porch railings, not only destroying property, but making themselves a nuisance. We have both a nuisance and non-destruction of property law, why are they not enforced? Where do merchants, grocers, etc., get the idea that they can send a bunch of reckless bill passers out to throw a lot of trash on private property. Not ten per cent of these cheap advertisements are ever read; streets and alleys are proof of this. There is no profit derived from this method of advertising. Advertise in The Dispatch; anyone who can not afford a penny for this daily, has no money to buy cheap merchandise.

There are two sure ways to end this nuisance, elect men to council who will pass a law against it, and refuse to patronize all dealers who continue to make themselves a public nuisance. Annoyed. (In Columbus Dispatch.)

Davey's bill would create a new state relief commission to allocate funds on a basis of need instead of on 1933 relief expenditures, as the present law provides. The commission would have the power to "determine x x x the total amount which may be expended x x x within any county in any month, regardless of the source from which such funds are derived."

Counties would pay with their own money one third of their June and July relief requirements and one half for each month following. County commissioners would administer the funds.

"The sole question to discuss," Paul-Boncour, "is whether the expulsion was justified. We think it was not."

Prime Minister Baldwin, in London, served a strong warning in the House of Commons today that Great Britain would not tolerate foreign tampering with the affairs of Palestine and Egypt.

His statement was made in reply to a member's request that he make it clear, in unmistakable terms, that Great Britain would not permit Italian interference in those two countries.

The announcement closely followed a governmental decision to appoint a royal commission to investigate disorders in Palestine which various British sources have reported as inspired by Italians.

Recalling that Great Britain withdrew its protectorate from Egypt in 1922, Baldwin said: "In so notifying the powers, His Majesty's government made it clear in unmistakable terms it would regard as an unfriendly act any attempt at interference in the affairs of Egypt by any power and would consider any aggression against territory in Egypt as an act to be repelled by all the means at its command."

"His Majesty's government, responsible for the administration and protection of Palestine in accordance with the terms of the mandate, intends to discharge its responsibilities to the full."

The Symbol

Nation's Grateful
Remembrance

We've adopted the Poppy as a mute acknowledgement of the honor we accord the veterans as we wear it on our breasts. May its red glow warm their hearts, cheer their spirits and temper their ills. May it convey to them the message of a nation's undying gratitude.

Eighteen years since the joyful news of the Armistice rang around the world. To most of us the time has passed quickly. It seems only yesterday that we reviewed our returning heroes marching home. The cheers and tears of joy are still vivid before us.

But what long years they have been to those mourning Gold Star mothers. What long years they've been to those crippled, shell-shocked, blinded and maimed martyrs, many of whom are but merely marking time to the relief that will be theirs when taps are sounded. What price glory if they be denied on this day dedicated to remembrance.

There is no tribute that can recompense for what they have contributed. But we can manifest to them today that they are not forgotten. Our debt can only be expressed in the honor, reverence and admiration for their nobility. Their victory and sacrifices will stand as a national heritage to enrich the loyalty and patriotism of American posterity.

Agriculture's Future

Ambassador-at-Large Davis is returning soon to the United States. He is now in London and has given out some interesting statements which, undoubtedly, will be supplemented, very materially, in his official reports to the Washington government.

Mr. Davis has been touring through many European countries, obtaining information of value to the people of the United States in future planning of economic affairs.

Of especial importance to those of us who live in the agricultural sections is his rather pessimistic view of the future of American agriculture in regard to exports.

Quite frankly Mr. Davis asserts that he is unable to see, at this time, how and where the United States will be able to increase its exports of agricultural products. The reason for that opinion is that so many European nations have so increased their facilities for farming that they are not, at present, even partially, dependent on exports from the United States. In fact, some of the nations formerly customers of the United States for the products of agriculture, in the export markets have now become exporters of those products themselves.

Regrettably many, who have watched developments in Europe and throughout the world, are compelled to agree with Mr. Davis' views.

All of which brings to us realization that American agriculture's future is a problem which America will be compelled to work out for itself and agriculture, being our basic industry, it is important that our national administration be agriculture minded.

Conquest By Default

Many observers are asserting that the action of Japan in increasing its military forces in China to a total far beyond that permitted under the terms of the treaties entered into with the world's great powers, is a preliminary to waging a war of conquest and annexing the whole of northern China.

Judging the future by the past which, as a rule, is a very dependable barometer, Japan will not be required to wage a war of conquest against China and the nations of the western world are so occupied with problems of their own that it is not likely opposition, except verbal, will develop, in the Occident, to Japan's action. That being true and China prostrate and ineffective, in a military sense, will offer no resistance of consequence to Japan and, while the nations of the western world are quarrelling with each other, and seeking to check Mussolini and Hitler and Stalin, the wily Japs, quick to seize their opportunity, will grab all of Northern China and after that like Mussolini and Hitler have done will calmly ask the world what it's going to do about it. And the world, with the League of Nations in ruins, with open alliances and secret understandings again in vogue, the nations of the western world may do a bit of talking but aside from talk there will be absolutely nothing done.

The nations of Europe are too much occupied with their own affairs and the menace of war in Europe to even protest against Japan's aggressions in China and the United States, also a party to the treaties guaranteeing the integrity of China would be acting very unwisely to undertake, alone, to save China for the Chinese and oppose Japan.

The people of this nation have learned that going about over the world seeking to save nations which are too uninterested or unwilling to save themselves is a costly and a thankless task and, generally results in nothing but sorrow and debts to the United States. The World war cost us thousands of lives and billions of dollars in treasure, brought on the depression which caused us to incur billions of dollars more debts and the end is not yet.

Thus, it is apparent, that going to the Orient in search of more trouble is not an alluring prospect to Uncle Sam.

Charles P. Stewart Says:

SEE HOPE IN HOOVER CALL TO DEMOCRATS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, May 21.—Many Republicans think there is a deal of merit in ex-President Hoover's contention that the G. O. P. should make out-and-out overtures to anti-New Deal Democrats.

Their theory is that there are numerous old-fashioned Jeffersonians who will, indeed, sink at home on election day, but will not actually vote Republican unless they are offered some inducement to do so. To be sure, they will have a value to the G. O. P. as mere Democratic stay-at-homes, but only a fraction of the value they will have if they can be persuaded to become Republican voters.

However, an element of Republican leadership is rather fearful of too much of a Democratic dilution of their party, on the ground that it probably will be at the sacrifice of principles which, in the past, it has stood for.

PARTIES TRADE SIDES

If these latter folk did not realize it, to a great extent the two major parties have flopped sides already.

Once the Democrats were for states' rights and a minimum of government. The Republicans favored plenty of government, in the interest of a privileged class, perhaps, but they never subscribed to the Jeffersonian doctrine that the less there is of it the better. And they subordinated the states to their preference for a large measure of control of the whole country from Washington.

Now the Democrats are engaged in regulating nearly everything and the Republicans are howling their heads off about it. And there never was so much governmental centralization before in American history. The Republicans yell bitterly that it almost amounts to a dictatorship. TARIFF STILL IS POINT

In fact, if it were not for the tariff issue the two parties might be said practically to have swapped positions.

The Democrats, traditionally for a certain amount of moderation in import taxation, are scaling protection down more or less by means of the reciprocal trade agreements into which the administration is entering with foreign nations. And the Republicans continue to stand pat for very high customs imposts.

Yet even on this question the alignment no longer is clean-cut.

John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, for example, is a severe critic of Secretary of State Hull's reciprocal agreements, as calculated to undermine the protective system, which he believes in.

On the opposite hand, Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state in the Hoover administration, is one among several outstanding Republicans who praise the reciprocal bargains.

DISINTEGRATION!

Briefly, both parties have gone to pieces. To say that they have split would be to express it too mildly. They simply have disintegrated. But they don't know it yet.

Unaware that there has ceased to be any such thing as what formerly was known as a Democrat or a Republican, partisanship is re-aligning itself.

But it hasn't accomplished it yet; hence all the confusion.

Four years from now probably the re-shuffle will have been pretty well completed. The voters will understand who's who and which is which, but they don't at present and neither do many of their leaders.

NEW GROUPINGS

Presumably the re-grouping will be into liberal and conservative parties.

It was a re-grouping which the late Senator Robert M. La Follette attempted to effect in 1934, but the time wasn't ripe for it.

This time a re-division inevitably must follow.

It's in process now.

The old names may stick, but they will have a new significance. It is possible that it will become apparent at the coming conventions. It will be amply apparent by 1940, anyway.

Senator George W. Norris, a Republican, is a Democrat already. Al Smith, a Democrat, is a Republican.

There are plenty more such cases.

High Spots In Ohio History

From the Galbraith collection of Ohio Histories. Written for the Associated Press.

The Civil war had not been in progress many weeks before military authorities realized that a chief central military station would be necessary at Columbus. First soldiers to arrive at the capital camped in Goodale park, but it was realized that the park site would not answer. Soon Camp Jackson was established west of the city. It retained the name until that of former Governor Chase, then secretary of the treasury, supplanted it.

It was a military station, a rendezvous for units to be united into new regiments, for the organization of regiments, for reorganization, and a prison for private soldier's captured in action, officers so captured being imprisoned at Johnson's Island, in Sandusky Bay.

Poetry For Today

BUY A POPPY

Buy a poppy! Buy a poppy! Pin it proudly on your coat; Let the whole world see the fore-glow Of its color 'gainst your throat; Only yesterday it crimsoned To the challenge of the dead; Now it reddens to the glory Of the day-star overhead.

Buy a poppy! Buy a poppy! As an offering to those Who so valiantly defended us Against our country's foes; In memorial of their service To the old flag up above . . . Buy a poppy! Buy a poppy! As a boutonniere of love.

Buy a poppy! Buy a poppy! Love alone can ever repay For the sacrifice that left them Like the potter's broken clay; It will sweeten their contentment In the hours of pain and fret; Buy a poppy! Buy a poppy. Show the "boys" we don't forget.

TRAIL BLAZERS

Who Made Ohio History

By R. C. HALL

Geologists tell us that many thousands of years ago, a vast sheet of ice extended from the North Pole to a point as far south as the vicinity of the present city of Cincinnati.

The edge of this great glacier extended diagonally across the present state of Ohio through the approximate site of Chillicothe to the vicinity of East Liverpool. The ice probably formed a great dam across the Ohio valley at Cincinnati, thus converting the valley above for 200 miles or more into a vast lake fed by the streams of Southern Ohio which received the melting ice at the glaciery edge. Finally the climate changed and the glacier began its retreat northward.

It was about that time that the first man is supposed to have appeared in what is now Ohio. We do not know his name, nor race, nor whence he came, but he was certainly the first trailblazer in Ohio.

The evidences of his existence have been found in the terraces of sediment left by the floods caused by the melting glacier, for in these terraces have been found tools which correspond to those of man in the Stone Age as found in other countries. Although such tools have been found by the hundreds in Europe, only about half a dozen had been found in Ohio at the beginning of the Twentieth Century. The first one being found in Hamilton county in 1885.

These tools were simple flint hammers and indicate that this "Ice Man," "Stone Age Man," or "Paleolithic Man," which ever you choose to call him, belonged to the lowest human type. No one knows what became of this first Ohio Trailblazer.

THE FRESH AIR FIEND!

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By JACK STINNETT

New York—There's a rumor going round that the boys on the New York police force are studying the contract bridge books.

And well they should because the bridge players are snickering behind their hands at a raid on a fashionable west side bridge club, followed by a police visit to an ultra-fashionable club and the threat of further raids.

Duplicate bridge solely has been under police scrutiny. As any one who knows the difference between a finesse and a small slam can explain, duplicate is about the nearest thing to skill one can get with cards.

At these clubs, it was formerly the practice to play for a loving cup but after a few years every habitue had more cups than Aunt Minnie could keep dusted. Prizes were substituted and recently the prize has been in cash.

It is true that in many cases, side bets are posted, but persons who gamble rarely indulge in duplicate. It's considered far too slow for the thrill-seekers.

more. There are some games, however, at 10 cents a point.

The most amusing story coming out of the police meanderings concerned the visit of two burly detectives to Crookford's where, we hasten to add, no irregularities were found.

One of the burly ones is reported to have shouted, "Where's Crookford?" and when he received nothing but a titter from those present, repeated his query in a bull-like roar.

A guest, unable to restrain himself longer, stepped forward and said: "Sh-h-h, captain, Crookford's in an English grave, lo, these many years."

The visit ended in a hasty retreat.

When anyone asks "Guess whom I saw on the street today?" answer "Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt," and you will be right a surprising number of times. . . . No matter how frequently and casually Mrs. Roosevelt goes shopping in the New York department stores, her presence always causes a flurry that brings pause to multitudes.

We are wondering if Max Fleischer's new three-dimensional animated cartoons will put spurs to development of third dimension for feature pictures.

FRENCH FORECAST HUGE COSTS FOR DUCE'S PLANS IN ETHIOPIA

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Paris (P)—French colonial experts, drawing on their own experiences in Africa, predict that Mussolini's dream of colonizing and developing Ethiopia will cost staggering sums.

The amount they figured came out so large that they hold Italy can not possibly finance the undertaking herself, but must turn to other countries for financial support.

And to obtain such support, these Frenchmen believe, Mussolini must put himself on good behavior, postponing further aggressive moves and permitting other nations to trade with Ethiopia.

Half French Cost Figured

To obtain French aid, he must guarantee the economic existence of Djibouti as a port of entry to Ethiopia, with which it is linked by the country's only railway.

Pierre Mille, explorer, former colonial official and regarded as one of the leading colonial authorities in France, estimates it will cost at least $500,000,000 to establish 100,000 Italian farmers in Ethiopia.

France, he says, has found that it costs $10,000 to set up a French peasant on a fully equipped farm in Tunisia and his half-billion dollar figure is based on the possibility that Mussolini can do the same thing for Italians in Ethiopia at half that amount.

Investment Seen Profitable

Mille believes the investment probably would be a paying one, for cotton and a high grade of coffee can be grown in the hot lowlands of Ethiopia and wheat, tobacco and cattle can be raised on the cooler highlands. Italy imports all these commodities, except wheat, but only lately has grown her own grain.

The Italian peasant being a patient and painstaking agriculturist, the prospect of his success is good, Mille holds, but not much can be expected from the natives until after years of training.

Ethiopia's wealth in petroleum, platinum, potash and possibly gold is a mystery and it will take another large amount of money to find out what there is of value beneath the soil.

Railroad Work Expensive

And it will take still more money to develop production if the subsoil wealth is sufficient to justify it.

France would like to retain its rail monopoly in Ethiopia, but it is regarded certain that Italy will construct a road of her own, for as far back as 1925 Mussolini proposed a railway across Ethiopia to link Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

It is believed the Italians will try to connect Asmara, in Eritrea, with Mogadiscio in Italian Somaliland by rail via Addis Ababa. Such a road would be more than 1,200 miles long. It would cost a tremendous amount, for it would climb mountains, traverse gorges and cross deserts.

NAZI SOLDIERS SLEEP ON GRIEFS

Berlin (P)—German soldiers must not submit complaints about their superiors without having first "slept on it," says a decree issued by the minister of war.

The new "procedure of complaints" says any soldier who feels that he has suffered injustice from a superior has the right to submit a complaint after one night has passed since the incident. Joint complaints of a number of persons are forbidden.

Soldiers submit their complaints to their direct superior officer or, in case the complaint is directed against him, to the next officer in rank. Against his decision an appeal to the next higher officer is possible and eventually to Adolf Hitler as supreme commander of the German army.

HOPES FOR CITY SOFT BALL LEAGUE FADE

INTEREST

ON THE DOWNGRADE

For Regular City League in Washington C. H., It Seems

"ARMY" HAD CHARGE

Of Last Year's Activities, but He Is Definitely Out Now

Softball, game for most all ages and topic of much discussion, is still shaded with indefiniteness as to whether or not it will be played in Washington C. H. in regular city leagues this summer.

Although several "I'd like to play", or "I'd put up a team" have been heard, no one has done anything to get a loop of softballers started.

Last year about this time softball was considered out definitely. In fact, announcement had been made that the gates of Wilson Field would be locked for the summer.

But then in stepped W. K. Robinson, with his FERA Recreation Program, and "Army" Armbrust, who was destined to really get the thing going. Soon after "Army" took the project over he had a league in the morning and one in the evening going full blast that ran all summer.

Not only the softball loops were introduced in this program, but also a menu for younger boys which included swimming, hiking, bicycling, and games and stunts.

"Army," it is understood, would not be eligible for the job of Recreation Leader under FERA program this year. Last summer he was just out of school and didn't have a coaching position, which he acquired at Bucyrus last fall.

In a letter to the Herald, "Army" says: "I sincerely hope some one will take the responsibility of organizing softball leagues in Washington C. H. this summer."

"I'm sorry it will be impossible for me to organize and supervise the recreation program as I did last summer. I enjoyed working with the managers and teams and received excellent cooperation."

"I'm sure whoever takes the responsibility this summer will have a lot of fun and success."

Quartet Back Display Good Catch of Fish

Although warned that the sign was not right and they would not catch any fish worth while, Deputy Sheriff Ott Reno, Erk L. Parrett, W. R. Hook and T. Glenn McCoy hid themselves to the teening waters of Brush creek in Adams county, two days ago, and proceeded to test their skill in enticing the big fellows from the deep waters of the famous stream.

Thursday morning they were back in Washington C. H. with numerous showhead cats, a few other species, including a sizeable gar and a turtle that was very much alive.

Just to convince the experts who had warned them that they would not catch anything, the four men with about 40 pounds of fish, posed for a picture, and the biggest of the shovelhead cats displayed weighed around ten pounds.

In addition to the many fish displayed upon their return, the quartet calmly announced that they had devoured others that would have added materially to the prize string displayed here.

North Carolina farmers will be entitled to $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in soil conservation grants this year.

Wednesday's Stars

By The Associated Press
Schoolboy Rowe and Marvin Owen, Tigers—Rowe checked Yankees with six hits and fanned ten. Owen's homer won game in tenth.
Jake Powell, Senators—Drove in two runs with three singles against Indians.
Merritt Cain, White Sox—Blanked Athletics with seven hits.
Julius Solters, Browns—Found Red Sox hurlers for triple, double and single and drove in five runs.
Hal Schumacher, Giants—Went route against Cardinals and cleaned loaded bases with double.
Van Mungo, Dodgers—Held Cubs to six hits and fanned seven.
George McQuinn, Reds—Led 15-hit attack on Boston.
Floyd Young, Pirates—Hit two home runs against Phillies.

Bush 6-4, 6-1. Bush won the first set 6-3.

The other Wilmington win was market up by Hiatt when he downed Callendar, of the Lions, with a count of 6-1, 6-2.

Lynch, Washington C. H., turned in a good brand of play in turning back his Wilmington opponent, Rennols, with a count of 6-3, 6-0.

In the most hotly-contested match of the afternoon, Baker and Elliott finally conquered Hiatt and Cowgill in the only doubles affair of the meeting.

The first set was taken by the Washington C. H. lads 6-3. The Orange and Black netters came back in the second set to swamp the Lions 1-6. Baker and Elliott putting up a good fight, took the deciding set 8-6.

Washington High's next match is scheduled for Friday afternoon when the Blue and White crew entertains the classy Bloomingburg crew at Gardner Park. Coach Clarence Taylor announces that the other two tilts scheduled by the Lions will be with Wilmington and Chillicothe.

The Quaker City lads come here Tuesday, of next week, while the Lions act as hosts to the Chillicotheans Wednesday.

FORBIS TO START ON MOUND FOR BLUE LIONS THIS WEEK

Ray Forbis, ace southpaw of the Blue Lion ball club, will put his too against the slab as starting hurler Friday afternoon when the Washington C. H. squad treks to Mechanicsburg for the second encounter of the season with the Champaign Countians.

At the first meeting of the two crews, the Mechanicsburgers came to Wilson Field and were socked around the lot to the tune of 14 to 4.

The Indians, although bombarded to pieces by the Lion batsmen, were on their toes looking for any chance that may have been tossed their way. Which means they'll be out to prevent the Lions from repeating their first performance.

"Snuffy" Smith, who supposedly is a catcher, will probably be sent to one of the outer-gardens in Friday's battle, Coach Howard E. Maurer announces.

Landaker, giant rightarm twirler will probably face the Lions on the hill top for the Indians.

Brewers Climbing Up A.A. Ladder By Beating Leaders

RED BIRDS VICTORIOUS IN GAME WITH INDIANS PLAYED AT NIGHT

Chicago, May 21—(P)—Manager Allan Rothorn's Milwaukee Brewers cast their eyes toward first place in the American Association baseball race today, but the lofty position was at least two days removed from their reach.

Milwaukee took over undisputed possession of second place yesterday by handing the league leading St. Paul clubs its fourth consecutive defeat, 9 to 8, while Minneapolis was losing to Kansas City.

The victory also moved Milwaukee within a game and a half of the lead, with an opportunity to gain another game today before moving over to Minneapolis.

Johnny Niggeling, Kansas City hurler, held Minneapolis scoreless for eight innings, but relaxed in the ninth when two runs scored to achieve his 8 to 2 win. The triumph enabled the Blues to push into third place ahead of Minneapolis.

Four hits by Stump and three by Madjeski provided the Kansas City batting spark, Madjeski driving in four runs and Stump two. Columbus trimmed Indianapolis, 10 to 5, in a loosely played night game. Five errors and eight walks aided Columbus in its victory. The Red Birds clinched the game in the seventh, scoring three times without a hit.

Toledo was forced to stave off a ninth inning Louisville rally for a 5 to 4 decision in another night game. The Colonels collected only six hits off Sullivan and Cohen.

Fight For Miller

Cleveland, May 21—(P)—Pete Reilly, manager of Freddie Miller of Cincinnati, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, announced today that Miller and Jimmy Vaughn, Cleveland lightweight, will meet in a ten-round match in Cincinnati next Wednesday night.

66-Year-Old Man In Walking Race

CINCINNATI CONTEST ALSO HAS OTHER VETERANS

Cincinnati, May 21—(P)—A sixty-six year old man came to town today to show the "boys" how to walk.

He's A. L. Monteverde, of Los Angeles. He will be the oldest competitor Sunday in a 50,000 meter walk, sponsored by the National A. A. U.

"Granddaddy" among the heel-and-toe artists, Monteverde has been a participant in walking and running events for nearly 50 years.

A week after the local contest, he is scheduled to run in the National A. A. U. marathon race, over a 26-mile distance, at Washington, D. C.

Other "old-timers" booked for the 50,000 meter (31-mile) events here include Sebastian E. Linehan of Cincinnati, who looks younger than his 43 years, and Harry L. Clark of Boston.

SMALL FIELD FOR LATONIA DERBY LIKELY

SEVERAL "BIG NAMES" IN HORSEDOM MISSING

Latonia, Ky., May 21—(P)—With drawal of Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Dnieper gave indication today that the 54th Latonia Derby, rich opening stake of the northern Kentucky racing season Saturday, would draw a small field, probably less than a dozen entries.

In fact, just nine were listed by expert dopesters, as carloads of entries for the 37-day meet continued to arrive.

The race will be for $15,000 added, over a mile and a quarter route. Hal Price Headley's Hollywood, which ruled winter books for the Kentucky Derby then failed to run, appeared as the "horse to beat" after Morton L. Schwartz's Bold Venture, winner of the Derby and the Preakness, was withdrawn.

These entries were probably starters: Songmaker, Prince Fellow, Bow and Arrow, Tatterdenation, Erin Torch, Memory Book, Wise Duke, Silas and Hollywood.

The higher you climb the harder the earth feels—if you have to come down to it in a hurry.

GIANTS ON TOP

AFTER BEATING CARDS

Spirit of New Yorkers Overcomes Handicaps and Pitching Slump

DODGERS ADVANCE TOO

Tigers Set Back Leading Yankees in Tenth

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

The New York Giants, a team which has seen its starting pitchers finish only nine games out of 29; whose manager and leading hitter, Bill Terry, is on the bench because of injuries; which has had nearly all its key men hurt at one time or another and which was down to one able catcher for a time is in first place in the National League.

It speaks volumes for the ability and spirit of the Giants that they have even remained in the race in the face of all those handicaps. To make it even more surprising, eight of those nine complete games have been hurled by two men, Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher, and Schumacher has finished only three times in eight efforts.

Coming back after a disastrous western tour, during which they lost six out of eight games, the Giants have rallied to win seven in a row on their home lot from those same western rivals and climb from fourth place to the top.

They took the lead by a direct frontal attack on the St. Louis Gas-house gang, yesterday, trimming the Cardinals 10 to 7 and routing their old teammate, Roy Parmelee.

The Brooklyn Dodgers also staged an advance in the standing perhaps just to show off some of the material they may trade to the wabby Cubs. With Van Mungo on the hill pitching six-hit ball, the Flatbush boys belted the 1935 champions 11 to 2 and moved out of the cellar. The Phillies replaced them after absorbing a 9 to 3 beating from Pittsburgh's Pirates as Floyd (Pep) Young smacked a pair of home runs.

New York, Boston and Cleveland, running 1-2-3 in the American League, all came out on the short end of yesterday's encounters. The world champion Detroit Tigers, whose pitching has taken a decided turn for the better, outlasted the Yankees to win a ten-inning mound duel between Schoolboy Rowe and Red Ruffing, 4 to 3. Marvin Owen's homer was the winning blow for Rowe, who fanned ten as each pitcher gave six blows.

The St. Louis Browns, continuing their newly discovered hitting streak, pummeled the Red Sox 12 to 8 despite Jimmie Fox's ninth homer of the season and Washington edged out the Indians, 7 to 6, leaving Cleveland only a half game ahead of Detroit.

Merritt (Sugar) Cain, who seems to have taken on new life since the Browns traded him to the White Sox, pitched Chicago to its first shutout victory of the season when he blanked the Athletics with seven hits to win 4-0. In the day's other game the Cincinnati Reds overcame a five run deficit in the last two innings, scoring seven runs in the eighth to trounce the Boston Bees 10 to 8.

Neither the Giants nor the Cubs troubles appeared entirely over after yesterday's games. Schumacher, although he went the route, gave 14 blows including homers by Terry Moore and Pepper Martin.

-SPORT-SLANTS

Bernie Bierman of Minnesota gets the palm for the first of the big bear stories that will emanate from the college football arenas on a great crescendo up through next November.

Bierman really feels sorry for himself and for Minnesota when he considers the plight of the Golden Gophers, who haven't been beaten since 'way back in 1932. They're not exactly the same Gophers who have weathered the last three campaigns undefeated. Bierman points out, and therein is the rub.

Our Minnesota emissary caught step with Bierman as he waded out on the muddy practice lot at Minneapolis and heard woe enough to send him off for a supply of crying towels—double quick.

"Very slow progress," wailed Bierman, "and it's not all due to the weather. We have adequate line material. It's our definite storage of backs that bothers." Now, there's a strange thing on the football front—plenty of forwards and no backs. We thought everyone wanted to carry the ball.

"I've been reading about our great freshman material," Bierman wept on, "but outside of three or four linemen the evidence just doesn't hold up."

"Last fall, if you remember, we were in serious difficulty. We had to do a lot of shifting to pull through in the backfield. If our backs hadn't played up to absolutely 100 percent it would have been just too bad."

"Four of those are going, along with two good replacements. And I don't see anything coming up among the new boys right now."

"Last year we played seven major games. This year we play eight and our opponents are about as strong as a year ago, while it looks like we will be definitely weaker."

Right now Bierman can see only defeat in the opener against the Washington Huskies at Seattle.

"We've simply got to make faster progress. Without boosting, we're the team that Washington and everybody else will be shooting at. Frankly, right now we aren't equipped with the stuff to cope with the situation."

"On ability, I'd say, we'll lose the majority of our games next fall. Of course, other factors may help, but on paper right now, five of our eight opponents are definitely superior and the other three are equal." The Gophers play Washington, Nebraska, Michigan, Purdue, Northwestern, Iowa, Texas and Wisconsin in that order. But the rapid sideliners don't share Bierman's gloomy outlook. They know the Gophers always are tough to beat in the autumn, springtime crying spells notwithstanding.

"Can you name, off-hand, the seven undefeated college football teams of 1935? Besides Minnesota they are Princeton, Alma, Ohio University (not to be confused with Ohio State), Speerfish (S. D.) Normal, Nassau of Garden City, L. I. and Middle Tennessee Teachers."

Among the off-beat colleges, Speerfish has probably the greatest modern football record of any. The Speerfishers were undefeated champions of their conference five times in the last eight years and they weren't scored upon in 1928 and '29. In the eight years they rang up 431 points to the opposition combined total of 38.

Outboard Races Sunday

Waverly, O., May 21—(Special)—The national outboard championship may be won or lost in races on Lake White, two miles south of here, next Sunday. The honor is based on the total number of points scored in sanctioned meets during the racing season.

Washington C. H. Boys to Hold Baseball School

"Come on, fellas, get your ball glove and let's go down to Wilson Field for the baseball school."

And a good representation of these "fellas" is expected Saturday morning when Coach Howard E. Maurer conducts his baseball school for youngsters of the city schools.

Supt. L. W. Reese has invited all boys in the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth grades of the city schools—Central,

Cherry Hill, Sunnyside, Eastside, and Rose avenue—out to attend this get-together of the major league ball players of 1935.

Coach Maurer will select several of the older players on the Blue Lion baseball team to assist him in the Saturday morning schooling.

Batting, fielding, and fundamentals, with probably a couple of games of "choos-up" will be on the menu for the Saturday morning session.

This is the first event of its kind to be held in Washington C. H. but will probably become an annual affair.

Supt. Reese announced that next year, providing this season's school is successful, there will be three Saturday morning sessions. The last one will be climaxed by bringing some minor league ball players here to help give instructions.

Saturday's program comes due to the fact that the interest is greater this year in regulation baseball around Washington C. H. than it has been for some time.

So the city boys, and incidentally boys from the rural schools, will be cordially welcomed at the session if they wish to learn a bit about the National Pastime.

Don't forget, Wilson Field, nine o'clock, Saturday morning. Bring ball gloves and other equipment if possible, but come anyway.

THE CAMDEN RUBY MURDER

ADAM BLISS

ADAM BLISS

ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

Detective Keyes and Gary Maughan are attempting to unravel the mysterious murder of Margalo Younger, an actress and old friend of Maughan. She was killed with a needle-like instrument as she and Maughan sat in the home of Don Van Every, a collector of rare jewels, whom she had met through his friend, Maughan, listening to his gruesome history of the famous Camden ruby. At the time she was wearing the ruby against the wishes of Van Every who described it as a "murder stone." Among those questioned by the detective were Maughan, himself; Van Every; his young niece, Joyce, who lives with him; her fiancé, Allan Foster, who at one time was in love with the dead actress, and Joyce's companion, Laura Randall. Another suspect is Roy Barimore, close friend of the actress, who shot himself shortly after her death. Van Every tells Maughan how he bought the ruby from two nuns. Joyce confides to Maughan that she has secured a job in a department store against her uncle's wishes. The detective and Maughan start for the home of a Mrs. Bryce, an intimate friend of Van Every. Keyes and Maughan learn from Mrs. Peoples, Margalo's maid, that the actress recently had given a check for $7,000 to a friend, Manuel Gonzales. Margalo's maid brings a ruby, found in one of the garrets of her dead mistress, to the detective. It is an exact duplicate of Van Every's. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 24

"CAN YOU remember what Miss Younger did other days than Monday?" Keyes asked Mrs. Peoples. There was a hint of sarcasm in his voice, and Mrs. Peoples felt it.

"I'm only telling you what she did Monday week because I thought you would like to know. In the taxi coming over I thought back, and remembered as much as I could. I thought you would want to know."

"I do, and thank you."

"It's kind of easy remembering Mondays—on account of the beauty shop. I had to be careful that she doesn't forget that, so I always reminded her Monday when she waked up."

"Would you remember if anyone strange had called that day?"

"Well, I don't think that I would. There's always a lot of people visiting her. If it's anyone out of the ordinary I might, but as I remember no one came Monday afternoon. Her friends knew where she was, so usually didn't call. Oh, I don't mean to say there weren't calls—there were, but nothing suspicious."

"What time was she due at this beauty shop?"

"One-thirty."

"And what time did she usually leave?"

"Near five."

Keyes coughed. "Hardly time to run to the bank and draw out her cash before she went to the shop, and certainly no time to get it afterwards, as the banks would be closed."

"I never thought of that!" Mrs. Peoples exclaimed.

"What time did she leave to meet Gonzales?"

"About 12."

"Where were they eating?"

"I'm not sure. She didn't say. She liked breakfast out, though, and seldom had it home. Said it woke her up to get out. She liked to sleep late."

"What time did you awaken her in the morning?"

"Eleven."

Keyes thanked her again, and she left, looking rather longingly at the ruby as she went. I accompanied her to the elevator, and tried to make up for Keyes' brusque manner in dismissing her. Her find was invaluable. I thought, and she certainly should be given credit for it.

When I returned to the captain, he was looking dully at the ruby, which he had put on the white spread of the bed. Perhaps it was nerves, perhaps imagination, but the ruby didn't seem to sparkle as Van Every's had. To me, it only glowed feebly. I handled it again, but could learn nothing from it. It looked like the other, yet there was a subtle difference.

"We've got to go to Van Every, Keyes. He'll know."

He nodded and reached for his overcoat. "Damn ruby again, but I'm beginning to see why Margalo Younger made the appointment with Joyce Van Every for tea; why she was so interested in the Camden ruby; why she was so eager to talk to Van Every. She evidently had bought the Camden ruby, too, and was anxious to see whether hers was a forgery."

He examined the stone methodically.

"Van Every paid $70,000, Keyes Margalo, $8,000. No doubt in my mind but that hers is a fake."

"Women and their bargains!" he sighed, and stepped into the taxi. Van Every's house was lighted brightly, and when we entered the front door, McManus met us.

"Everything O. K., chief?" He led us into the living room where Van Every was reading. He greeted us kindly and ordered Soon to get some glasses for us. Pulling a silver flask from his pocket, he filled the glasses generously.

"Chase you out of your library?" Keyes asked.

"No, but I've no heart to stay there. I'm renting the house as soon as I can find a tenant."

Keyes finished his drink before he mentioned our errand. "Get me your ruby, will you, Van Every? I've something here, rather interesting to show you, but I must see your ruby first."

My friend seemed surprised as he called Soon. The Chinese was close by, and his master addressed him in a language I could not understand. Soon vanished and reappeared in perhaps 10 minutes with the box which I knew contained the ruby. Van Every opened it, took the chain in his hand, and held it up to the light.

Keyes dug in his pocket and brought out Margalo's ruby. I heard Van Every gasp as he leaned forward, then he swallowed and sat back weakly.

"Heavens, what a start you gave me! Where'd you get it?"

The officer explained as briefly as he could. When he had finished, Van Every arose. "Come up to my laboratory. I'll examine the stone. I don't think it's genuine, but we'll see."

I had not particularly noticed the door leading into the laboratory when Van Every and I sat in his bedroom the night Margalo was murdered. I imagined the door led to a clothes closet. Now he opened it, and we found ourselves in a small room, no more than six by eight. Possibly at one time it had been a closet. The one window looked out on the garden. A long narrow table, holding three powerful microscopes, faced this. On the velvet cover near one of the instruments was a small box containing other paraphernalia for examining jewels.

"My workshop," Van Every said simply. "Rather my playshop. Now let me have the ruby."

He went about examining the stone methodically. He had watched him before with the Klonivar diamond at the Villa Maurin, with a powerful enlarging lens and some instruments which were unknown to me then. He had no laboratory there.

Keyes and I waited silently for some 15 minutes, while Van Every went over every inch of the stone, measuring it, then tabulating the measurements.

At his request when he had finished, we both looked through a lens at the stone. It was clear except for a tiny bubble at the center. Examining his stone immediately afterwards, we saw the difference readily. The ruby, Van Every's ruby was absolutely clear, and there was a shade of variation in the color.

"A fake, of course. I knew that when I looked at it downstairs. But I wanted to see how it was made," Van Every was saying, in his quiet, well-modulated voice. "But it's a clever fake. You had me guessing for a second downstairs. Me paying $70,000 for a ruby, only to find there was another one in existence. Yes, Captain Keyes, Miss Younger's ruby is a fake, but a good one. A good jeweler could have told her that after a brief examination. She evidently did not take it to a jeweler. The way women buy things!" he smiled.

"But, here's the point, Captain Keyes. The man who made the copy did it from the ruby itself. The measurements are almost exact except that the cutting is far superior on the copy than on the original. Far better, which leads me to believe the copy is new—that is, within the last 50 years. Perhaps older than that. The chain is almost an exact copy, except for the gold used. If you wish, you can take both of them to a competent jeweler, who will corroborate my statement."

"No need of that, Van Every. I have already found out that you're an expert in your field."

Smiling slightly, Van Every told us as simply as he could how the imitation ruby had been made, of what elements it was composed.

"Is a copy like this valuable?" Keyes asked.

"I should say it would be worth around $500. Perhaps more. I don't deal in synthetic jewels, so can't give you the exact value. If Miss Younger paid any more than $500 for it, I personally would say she had been robbed. You understand that the copy is a fine one; no one but an expert could tell the difference. The ruby Miss Younger bought took some time to make—it was not an easy job. But there is no sale for a copy of a ruby as large as the Camden so I can see no object in doing all the work."

"The copy, then, was made by an expert?"

"Undoubtedly. And the person who did it compared it facet by facet with the real thing. His tools, though, were not so crude as the ones which cut the Camden. Gentlemen, if I were going to copy a stone, at least a stone cut as long ago as the Camden, I would first study the tools of the period, make them, and then go to work. The person who copied the Camden ruby evidently did not think of that, or did not have the time."

"Do you think it was made abroad or here?"

"I can't tell," Van Every was studying the two jewels again, comparing them closely.

"Has it occurred to you, Keyes," I asked, "that the person who sold Margalo Younger this jewel might want it back—in view of what has happened?"

"It had not, until you mentioned it."

Ex-Undertaker Cleared of Alleged Frauds in Greene County

Xenia, O., May 21—(P)—Ohio's famous "ancient estates" case apparently was closed today, with the Ohio Supreme Court sustaining an Appellate Court reversal of the conviction on a charge of violating the state security law of Francis E. Snynn, self-styled genealogist and "investigator" for various Ohio heirs corporations.

Two more indictments still stood against the retired, elderly Osborn undertaker, but informed sources said Greene county prosecutor Marcus McAllister probably would not press them after losing what he regarded as the strongest case.

They charge fraud and exaggeration of the values of "ancient estates" securities Snynn allegedly sold, and revolve around the question of existence or non-existence of pioneer estates supposed to be worth millions of dollars.

The Supreme Court held proper yesterday in Columbus the Appellate Court reversal of the conviction on the ground that he had merely acted as a clerk and had no part in the actual sale of the certificates.

The "ancient estates" case, four years in Ohio courts and the U. S. courts and the U. S. Supreme Court, started here when the county auditor's office announced that the $50 "membership certificates" in heirs' groups were subject to personal property tax.

Theodore Tange-man, then director of commerce, conducted an intensive investigation and obtained an injunction in Xenia against the international corporation of Gogardus, Cox, Edwards, Baker, and Springer heirs, to prevent it from selling memberships certificates or other securities in Ohio. Tange-man accused the corporation of obtaining money under false pretenses to finance a scheme involving liquidation of mythical estates.

Snynn and Mc Clain Catterlin, Brazil, Ind., farmer and former president of the corporation, were indicated in January, 1932, on four counts charging violation of the state blue sky law.

Catterlin was convicted, sentenced to five years in prison, and fined $2,000. He was paroled after the one-year minimum and never paid the fine.

Italy Rewards Convicts For Bravery in Battle

Rome (P)—Italian convicts who prove themselves courageous in battle are assured of shortened prison terms by a new cabinet regulation.

The ruling considers that all men decorated or promoted for valor in the army have won their right to "early rehabilitation" to citizenship. This means reduction by half of the prison term of men so honored.

Those cited twice for bravery may be pardoned at once on the theory that they have shown themselves "completely rehabilitated."

In addition, every soldier in Africa with an unfinished prison sentence behind him now wins, by the mere doing of his duty there, a reduction of his term amounting to three months for every year or fraction of a year he serves.

Also, convicts who win civil medals for valor are ruled eligible for the same clemency as war heroes.

Screen Life in Hollywood

By HUBBARD KEAVY

Hollywood—Clark Gable, who became one of the screen's so-called great lovers by a simple "Come on, baby," technique, is sorry for his brief lapse into cuteness.

He is not going to do it again—act the way he did with Myrna Loy in "Wife vs. Secretary." That is, not if he has anything to say about it.

"Me—I'm too big and funny looking to be cute," he says. "It was pretty bad. I protested, but it didn't do any good."

Gable frowned and made a wry face when he thought of that picture. It was something to think about. Fearlessly facing the facts, he went over the outer aspects of the role.

MADE BABY-LIKE NOISES

He portrayed a husband who had been married several years and who should have been a bit dignified about it, before breakfast, at least. Yet, what did he do?

He skipped about the house like a great Dane frisking in a drawing room. He held Miss Loy, his wife, on his lap during breakfast. This might be overlooked at luncheon, but not over the scrambled eggs and bacon. Also, he chuckled her under the chin and uttered noises—baby-like noises.

"Boo-hoo-boo—wasn't that what I said?" Gable groaned. "Wheew!"

He was told that an audience, and a rather indulgent audience, snickered and tittered when it witnessed this rash of matutinal cuteness. Gable said he didn't blame them.

"Audiences are getting discriminating," he went on. "They won't stand for the trash that used to be dumped on them. They're simply amused at the drawn-out, cloying love scenes of a decade ago."

NO ADENOIDAL BREATHING

Gable is particularly contrite about the chin-chucking, baby-talking role since he was one of the screen's first heroes to adopt a robust technique. He never had to deliver sugary speeches, no "I love you, darlings," no adenoidal breathing in a shell-like ear. Instead, he made the hold challenge, the dare, used the faintly amused and smug assurance to get what he wanted.

"I socked a girl in a picture once—and it went over," he says. "So they said, apparently—We've got some more stars around the place. Let's have Gable sock all of them."

Gable wants to continue playing character roles, as in his newest film, "San Francisco." He promises there will be nothing cute about them.

Water Bottles Give Clue To Chiang's Travel Plans

Nanking (P)—When China's generalissimo, Chiang Kai-shek, goes traveling by gunboat, air, plane or special train, a closely guarded part of his equipment is distilled water in bottles.

Years of campaigning in interior China have taught the generalissimo the necessity of nourishing food and pure water. Good enough food can be found anywhere, but drinkable water is sometimes a luxury, for 99 per cent of China's 400,000,000 people drink boiled or boiling tea. General Chiang is one of the few who prefers his water straight, and not too hot.

The ever-existing danger of assassination causes the general to keep secret his destination and the

Police Chief Supplies Justice On The Spot

Picher, Okla. (P)—Police Chief Al Maness is trying an old fashioned remedy for juvenile delinquency.

He caught five youths, 10 to 16 years of age, prowling about a store at night. Instead of jailing them, Maness says he turned them over his knee, one after the other, and gave them a spanking.

'Wild Men' Of Turkey Surrender Their Arms

Istanbul, Turkey (P)—The "wild men" of Turkey, medieval tribesmen who have carried on their primitive customs and barbarism into modern times, have surrendered at last.

By hundreds they have come down from the almost inaccessible fastnesses of the Kurdistan region and turned in their firearms, pledging themselves to observe the laws of Kamal Ataturk.

Among the last to submit were the 35 notorious murderers led by Zeynel Tchavouche. They had long been considered untakable.

California's gold yield in 1935 was $30,429,000, the largest since 1862.
